SEQUELS TO THE SNOW STORM.

SEQUELS TO THE SNOW STORM.

The work of clearing the streets of snow was continued yesterday. Commissioner Coleman had, altogether, nearly 300 carts and nearly double that number of men employed. Broadway was put in fair conditi n. Considering the amount of the snow-fall and the labor that was necessary to remove it, Broadway was yesterday in very fair condition from the Battery to Fourteenth-st. The snow in Union Square was being removed, and considerable progress had been made in clearing Twenty-third-st. Canal-st., from Broadway to Hudson-st., was pretty well cleared of snow. Contractors Walton and Mairs are doing as well as they can with the improvised force at their disposal. Mr. Walton had 112 horses and carts at work and Mr. Mairs nearly the same number. The down-town streets leading to the ferries are now in very fair shape.

An exhibition of a machine for melting the snew was to be given yest-relay in front of George Fox & Sou's boiler works, No. 521 West Thrity-fourth-st., but was posponed. Like most of these machines which have been exhibited heretofore, this one will melt snow, but not in sufficient quantity to render its use practicable or make it an important factor in removing a heavy snowfall. The proposed plan is simply to do the work with steam. Mr. Walton has had a large number of machines for melting snow submitted to him since he began the work of clearing away the fall in his district. The inventors in each instance were perfectly sure that their machines were just what was required. Several of them have for a melting apparatus large steam-pines perforated, and through these apertures the steam is to be thrown against the snowbank. None of them have yet been shown to be of much practical use.

The work of clearing away the snow will be prosent and the proper the steam. The streets leading to them have yet been shown to be of much practical use.

The work of clearing away the snow will be prosecuted to-night with vigor. The streets leading to the ferries down-town are already in good shape. In the district east of Broadway Mr. Walton's men will remove the snow in Pine, Nassau, Exchangoplace, Park-row, Chambers and Front-sts. On the west side Mr. Mairs's men will continue the work of clearing Chambers-st., West Broadway, Barchy, Dey, Cortlandt-st, and College-place. Commissioner Coleman's men will contine themselves to Broadway, from Fourteenth to Thirty-third-st., Fourteenth-st., Union Square and Twenty-third-st.

The sleighing yesterday was decidedly poor, but nevertheless, 8,000 sleighs passed in at the Fifthave, entrance to Central Park. There were few fast horses out, the state of the road precluding anything like fast trotting. There was the usual variety of family sleighs and cutters. There was one arrangement which attracted, as it was intended to do, a large amount of attention, and, also, as it was not intended to do, caused much laughter. It was a "tally-ho sleigh," and was "jolly utter," so one of the occupants said. It was almost the exact counterpart of a boy's "double runner," the riders sitting astride the affair in a most uncomfortable and Indicrous manner. In front was a coachman wearing a light-colored hyery, and behind, a guard, attired in a similar suit, carrying a long horn under his arm; but for the life of him he did not dare to let go long enough to blow it. The "tally-ho" was drawn by three horses, driven tandem, which would have done very well if a very refuctant animal had not been harmessed as leader. He did not want to go, and the horses behind him did; this occasioned considerable confusion ann delay. A certain amount of style was preserved, however, till, when near the Seventy-second-st, entrance, the sleigh capsized and procipitated those who bestode it into a convenient snow-bank.

The blockade on the main line of the Long Island Railroad was raised yesterday afterneon, and last evening the first train since Friday ran through te Greenport. Last night a large force of men was engaged opening the Sag Harbor extension of the Montauk Road east of Patchogue, and the Manor Branch. All the lines of the road will be opened to-day and the regular travel resumed. PLAYING RACQUET FOR A PRIZE.

The racquet tournament for professional players, to last three days, was begun yesterday at the Racquet Court, at Sixth-ave, and Twenty-sixth-st. The players were H. Bekes, the marker of the Quebec Racquet Club, and R. Moore and A. Wright, two of the markers of the New-York Club. The prize was $50 in gold, three games out of five. Bokes, who won the match yesterday, is thought to be the best "all-around" racquet player in the country. Not only is he sure in his delivery, but he is almost sure in difficult play, so brilliant are many of his back-stroke get-ups. His playing was watched closely and frequently applanded. There were no ladies present. Among the members of the club who sat in the gallery were William R. Trayers, C. Fellows, F. A. Olis, G. G. Howland, David Lyding, F. R. Fisher and L. M. Rutherford, jr. The following is the score:

This afternoon there will be a four-handed game, the fourth man being another marker belonging to the New-York Club.

STEALING SILVER PLATE.

Despite two locks on the heavy street-door, thieves forced an entrance into Henry Kenny's warehouse, at No. 48 Murray-st., on Wednesday last, and stole a quantity of heavy plated ware worth $500, which they found in a closet, leaving untonehed a large quantity of ware in smaller packages outside. The robbery was committed, it is believed, about 7 o clock a. m. The thieves were evidently in a harry, and left things strewn about. They selected their plunder judiciously, taking only fine goods; they were evidently informed both as to their location and relative value. The plunder consisted of plated knives, forks and spoons from the Rogers & Britton Silverplate Company, of Bridge-port, the Rogers & Brothers Company, of Bridge-port, the Rogers & Brothers Company, of Turper's Falls, Mass. Diligent search in the pawnshops of the city has failed to discover the goods. Mr. Kenny, who is not a rich man, has offered a reward of $150 for their return, "and no questions asked."

A SMALL FAILURE IN WALL STREET. A SMALL FAILURE IN WALL STREET.

The failure of Andrew D. Hunt, a member of the Stock Exchange, was announced yesterday. The amount of his indebtedness is not known, but is estimated at from $30,000 to $50,000. Mr. Hunt became a member of the Exchange about eight years ago, and this is his third failure in that time. He failed first in 1876, and again in 1878. About three failed first in 1876, and again in 1878. About three for four months ago the report that he had suspended was published, but considerable pains were taken to contradict it, and a letter of apology was read at the Stock Exchange. The opinion was expressed in Wall Street yesterday that the report was only premature. The cause that finally precipitated his present embarrasement is onderstood to be his inability to pay certain due bills for dividends on borrowed stock, which have been due for a week or more.

MURDERERS IN THE TOMBS.

MURDERERS IN THE TOMBS.

The indifference of William Sindram, sentenced to be hanged on Friday, regarding his fate is as marked as ever. Yesterday he seent much of his time walking around in the corrider of the Tombs, and in conversing with friends who called to see him. He wears a gray freek coat, dark trousers, a purple necktie and a Derby hat. His mother was with him several hours in the afternoon, and they talked quietly together. The troubled look on her face contrasted sirongly with the unconcerned expression of his. He is reported to have said once that he wished his mother not to come so often, as he did not like to see her wearing herself out. On Monday he expressed a desire to see the wife of a friend whom he had known years ago, and vesterday she visited him accompanied by her husband. To this friend he talked if he was not anxious to know what the final decision in his case would be, he replied that he did not care for a new trial. It would only make it necessary for him to endure months more of prison life, which is extremely distasteful to him. He again repeated his assertion that he would rather die on the gallows than serve a long term of imprisonment. To the friend he admitted that he made a mistake in writing the letters he did to the Grand Jury and the District-Atterney, but he has not shown the least contrition for the killing of Mrs. Crave.

"If I had been rich" he remarked, "it would have been all right. Stokes had money and be got off easy. So would I if I only had money. It's the peor man who hangs."

The prisener still refuses to see his brother Adolph, whose testimony, he says, secured his conviction. He has also persistently refused spiritual advice. With all of his indifference it was shewn yesterday that he has arrived at that state of mind in which one will grasp at straws. A letter was received from Baltimore signed. Buthel," in which the writer said that he believed that the conjunction of planets had a great deal to do with the conformation of the brain and also with one's fate. The writer requested the prisoner to send the date of his birth. Sindram showed a lively interest in the letter, handing it around to his friends and his keepers to read, and had an answer dispatched soon after receiving it.

The cells in the Tombs assigned to those persons accused of homicide are unusually full. Two others aside from Sindram are under sentence of death. Angustus D. OBSTRUCTING THE HARBOR.

The Pilot Commissioners spent much time at their last weekly meeting in discussing reports of violations of the harbor laws, and means to mete out punishment to those who persistently offend. An affidavit was laid before the Commissioners a few days ago, stating that the excavations from the Pennsylvania Railroad docks in Jersey City, for many months, had been dumped in the main ship channel between Bedloe's Island and Robbins Reef Light: that while the railroad company employed a watchman to see that the excavations were thrown outside of the harbor limits, he had compave with the contractor, the captain and owner of the boat, so that the scows were captied in the channel. In view of this affidavit Inspector Conway engaged a beat on Monday night to follow the tugboat James McMahon, with three scows full of mid. When the tow reached the main ship channel near Bedloe's Island, the scows were dumped. Inspector Conway hailed Captain W. E. Jaycox, in command, but it was not until the name of the boat had been called that an answer was received. Then Mr. Conway suggested to the capitain that he had been detected in his violation of the harbor law, but received no response. The three scows contained 1,050 cabic vards of mud and ciay.

Inspector Conway has also reported against the steamship Persian Monarch for dumping ashes in Gedney's Channel while going to sea on January 30. This is the second complaint filed against the Persian Monarch for violation of the harbor laws. The second which has been anchored at Sand Spit, in the East River, for the reception of ashes from tugs, has been removed to the slip at the foot of Baltic-st., Brooklyn, on account of the flowing ice.

LIFE INSURANCE FOR MERCHANTS.

The committee appointed by the president of the Pro nee Exchange to devise a plan for providing relief for the families of members, has submitted its report, and it was approved by the Board of Managers yesterday. Amendments to the by-laws providing for the plan submitted have been revised by the Law Committee, and will be acted upon by the Board to-day. The committee recommends a system in which it will be entirely optional with members to participate. If not the death of any member the other subscribers are each to be assessed $3. Upon every death within the first year the heiss are to receive $2,000, within the second year $3,000, third year $1,000, fourth year $5,000, softh year $6,000, sixth year $7,000, seventh year $8,000, capith year $9,000, minth year and thereafter $10,000. President Samuel Sloan was in the chair yesterday afternoon at the first spring meeting of the New York Horticultural Society, and reported that encouraging progress had been made in securing subscriptions for the new hall. It was decided to increase the construction fund by the sale of increase the construction fund by the sale of interest-bearing certificates, and it is confidently expected that the building will be a paying investment for the rociety in more senses than one.

The attendance was large and the display or flowers was exceptionally one. Among the orchids was an immense Ladia Anceps, with a dozen clusters of pink and white flowers at the end of gracefully drooping stems three or four feet long. Nearly 100 vases of cut roses from the most successful growers formed a collection which for variety and excellence of form and color has rarely been equalled at earlier exhibitions. A new hybrid, named "Aipha," a cross between the old tea-rose Safrano and the fourtion Hermosa, originated by Hallock & Thorpe, was pronounced by the experts a novelty of genuine value. The Chinese primroses, carnations, likes of the valley, and calendinas were all grown to perfection. The forced lines brought a whist of spering with them, while the burning scarlet of chanting clusters suggested the heat and drouth of Angust. Woolson & Co., of Passaie, had opened their cool frames and gested the heat and drouth of August. Woolson & Co., of Passaic, had opened their coid frames and contributed a few of their hards flowers which had been crowded ahead of the scason. These were a saxifrage from Oregon, a South American star flower—criteleia unifora—the modest little pink phlox septans, and two interesting specimens of the Christmas rose obtained by crossing different forms of the Helleborus.

MR. LAWRENCE'S POSTHUMOUS PAPER.

MR. LAWRENCE'S POSTHUMOUS PAPER.

At a meeting of the New-York Historical Society last night a paper was read by Edward T. Delaney on "The Life, Character and Public Services of Albert Gallatin," It had been prepared for the society by the late William Beach Lawrence, but, on account of his death, was never read by him.

The paper, which was left by Mr. Lawrence in a somewhat fragmentary state, traced the earlier career of Gallatin, described his birth place in Geneva, and emphasized the fact that he was an aristocrat by birth and training, and came over to America, not so nauch on account of republican proclivities as for the purpose of making a future in commerce and farming, in both of which he signally failed. He gave no military aid to the struggling colonies, it continued, but ont of his slender means advanced them money, most of which was never repaid. It was somewhat strange that Gallatin, who proved himself such a master of finance in the State, should have been so imprudent in his private speculations. The land investment which he made in Virginia never returned the amount of the purchase money.

The paper also gave a sketch of Mr. Gallatin's political career, until he became Secretary of the Treasny under Jefferson, in which office he displayed his great abilities as a financier. The fundamental idea of Gallatin's financial system was to pay off the national debt as soon as possible. The paper closed with showing the impression which his genius left on American political life. Many of the lifess which originated with him had become inwoven in the presont system of government. He was among the first to expose the absurdity of the sinking fundas a way to pay debt, and maintained that the only method was to have an excess of income over expenditure.

The andience, which was a small one, appeared to existe much hiterest in the paper.

The audience, which was a small one, appeared to evince much interest in the paper.

Answer the Question Closing this Item. Inteed, I have to ascribe thanks to the mirrordous power of St. Jacobs Oil, writes Mr. Theo-schale, Oil St. Claudes L. New triesans, La., that I am to day smeng the living. That dreaded doesder, the market of the work of the mirrordous power of the string. That I am to day smeng the living. That the mirrordous power of the market of the works, and so severe as to entirely disable me and this to ten works, and so severe as to entirely disable me and prevent me from performing the slightest service. The many remodies which I used, and the doctors whom I consulted, failed to cure or even so match as relieve my pains. In the fail of last year about the month of October I was again attacked by the disease, which contined match set and almost crazed me with the severe pains, and so help at rand, or promise or hope of surfacels. I had often beard of St. Loobs oil, but had mont as much contidence in it as in the other remodes which was very little, importanced by friends, I concluded to try the direct terms. However, and would thankfully say that his triends it intends to the first tried. In a short line I was caused. But string I market have not the St. Jacobs oil in infect of sealers, and recommend it was caused. The third the second of the world the string in the string of marking. Without it what would be the conductor of the world to-day?
